

Mowgli Street Food awarded Hospitality and Leisure Company of the Year at 2023 British HR Awards

Mowgli Street Food, founded by Nisha Katona and backed by TriSpan, has been awarded “Hospitality and Leisure Company of the Year” at the 2023 British HR Awards.

The British HR Awards is an annual awards ceremony hosted by Employee Insight platform New Possible. The British HR Awards sets out to discover and celebrate the organisations that are truly passionate about delivering a world-class people experience. The competition is judged by senior HR executives from the likes of Apple, Investec, Monzo, Iceland Foods and New Possible.

Nate Harwood, Founder of New Possible and British HR Awards judge said: “The British HR Awards recognises the inspirational teams and leaders that are having a positive impact on the working lives of so many people across the UK and beyond. A huge congratulations to all the Winners and Finalists - we look forward to seeing how your efforts continue to shape a new possible for the future of work.”

Mowgli Head of HR, Abbey Mellor, and her team, collecting the award